

Who must lead the society in the modern epoch?

MANIFESTO

As it is already known, the leadership of the human society stands in the hands of some organizations (political parties) that represent the interests of some groups. The power is permanently craved for by financial groups that do not belong to a political party, by powerful organizations, such as freemasonry, but also by individuals with dictatorial inclinations.

It is well known the fact that the humankind faces some deep challenges, which its existence depends on. There are 10 important challenges: 1. Water, 2. Energy, 3. Means of subsistence, 4. Environment, 5. Diseases, 6. Education, 7. Population, 8. Democracy.

Who can solve these challenges?

The only forces that can fight with the worldwide challenges are: science and technology. The organization of the fight for the survival of the earth must stand in the hands of those that can bring saving solutions: scientific and technological researchers.

To leave the leadership of the fight in the incompetent hands of the bankers, politicians and of other forces with occult interests, means to leave the planet in the blowing of the wind. The small revisions made by the political leadership from every country cannot solve the important problems of our globalized society. The crises cannot be controlled because the measures taken are inefficient: injecting some funding in banks, in big factories, which produce for instance automobiles, different austerity measures.

The answer to the challenges can only be given by the accelerated and controlled progress of the science, hand in hand with the technology.

Unfortunately, to take the power with the purpose to save the planet is an extremely difficult act. The coalition of the technical-scientific forces as large and international organizations is a necessity. The way of organization is still uncertain, but the use of the modern and rapid communication means can determine a powerful and rapid coalition of the worldwide forces of the scientific and technical elites, which can materialize a vast social overthrow.
